1. Demonstration of Compliance with Applicable Service Quality Standards and Consumer Protection Rules:

In establishing this certification in its 2005 ETC Order,¹ the FCC found that an ETC must make “a specific commitment to objective measures to protect consumers.”² The FCC found that for wireless ETCs, compliance with CTIA’s Consumer Code for Wireless Service would satisfy this requirement” and that the sufficiency of other commitments would be considered on a case-by-case basis.³ In this context, the FCC stated, “to the extent a wireline or wireless ETC applicant is subject to consumer protection obligations under state law, compliance with such laws may meet our requirement.”⁴

Barry County Telephone (“Company”) hereby certifies that it is complying with applicable service quality standards and consumer protection rules. The Company is subject to consumer protection obligations under federal law and, to a limited extent under Michigan state law as a telecommunications carrier subject to Michigan Public Service Commission regulation. These obligations include, but are not limited to, the following: (1) adherence to state requirements that the Company complies with the rights and responsibilities for Basic Residential Telecommunications Service adopted by the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC), including availability of residential

Ability to Function in Emergency Situations

Barry County Telephone Company hereby certifies that it is able to function in emergency situations. The Company's network is designed to remain functional in emergency situations without an external power source, is able to reroute traffic around damaged facilities, and is capable of managing traffic spikes resulting from emergency situations. The Company can change call routing translations as needed to reroute traffic around damaged facilities. Changing call routing translations will also allow the Company to manage traffic spikes throughout its network, as emergency situations require.

For decades the telephone providers have valued a five 9s (99.999%) of reliability within their overall networks. What does this really mean; the five nines reliability equates into 5 minutes and 15 seconds or less of total down time per year. To do this requires a great deal of redundancy and alternate sources throughout the telephone network. Barry County Telephone Company has incorporated the following standards and implementations within their network.

- Central Office building's that hold the equipment to service the customer have redundant power sources to include a battery system that can maintain the office or hut for at least 8 hours and a generator backup system to provide power for those outages that are longer than 8 hours. It shall be noted that the generators are started immediately once a power outage is determined. This ensures that the generator starts and is functional prior to the depletion of the batteries. If the generator fails to start immediately, a service personnel and a backup generator is deployed prior to the depletion of the batteries to ensure the office does not lose power.

- The Central Office building(s) or hut(s) have alternate paths (consisting of buried fiber cables) in and out to assure survivability if one of the paths is damaged or cut. These paths are how each office receives and delivers to the customer the request services which is comprised of voice, and/or data services. It shall be noted that the path from the Central Office building or hut to the subscriber are not redundant.

- The Central Office equipment that delivers services to and from the customer also has redundancy in all primary facilities such as power and transport (alternate path) sources.
- Throughout the network some customers are served utilizing fiber to the home technology. To ensure reliability at the customer home, each home is equipped with an 8 hour battery backup system.
